

1. Resident Registration, Koseki Family Register and Inkan Seal Registration

We will prepare a Certificate of Residence for you in the same way as we do for Japanese people if you are a mid- to long-term resident with a status of residence over three months or a permanent resident. If you have such a status of residence, you will need to register as a resident when you first start living in Japan, when you move and when you leave Japan. You can receive city services by registering as a resident.

In addition, there is a system called the koseki (family register) in Japan. This document records events that happen in your life (e.g., birth, marriage, divorce, or death) and your family relatives. This serves as public proof of these events. Foreigners do not have koseki family registers, but they must notify the municipal office when they experience these life events in Japan.
